Natural Products Association Congratulates Donald J. Trump on Election Victory

Promises to Work with Administration to Promote Access to Safe, Affordable Natural Products

WASHINGTON, D.C. – On behalf of the largest and oldest association dedicated solely to the natural products and dietary supplement industry, Dan Fabricant, Ph.D., Executive Director and CEO of the Natural Products Association (NPA) released the following statement congratulating President-elect Donald J. Trump and pledging to work with his administration on important regulatory and legislative issues:

“The Natural Products Association congratulates Donald J. Trump for becoming the 45th President of the United States and looks forward to working with his administration to promote access to safe and affordable natural products for Americans. We are confident that we can form a productive and strong relationship to ensure the FDA enforces the rules it already has on the books while ensuring that consumers have confidence in the products they take each and every day. The natural products industry is important not only to the health of millions of Americans but also to the health of the United States economy, and we look forward to working with President-elect Trump’s administration on both of these fronts.”
